REPUBLICAN COUNTY TICKET.

County Judge—ANDREW H. MILLS.
County Clerk—ORONUKE P. HARDY.
Sheriff—JOHN H. MAUZY.
County Treasurer—GEORGE R. STEELE.
County Superintendent—THOMAS L. EVANS.
Representative—WILLIAM GRASON.

The Convention and its Work.

The Republicans of Macon county are not only alive, but are entirely harmonious, if the full attendance at their convention and the lack of uncomfortable friction in its deliberations can be relied on as criterions. Every township was fully represented, not by "picked up" delegations, but by delegates regularly chosen, and there was not a sign of ill feeling or bad blood displayed during the entire session. The primary election system showed its superiority over all other methods by determining the sentiment of the Republicans of the county in the matter of nominations, and leaving no room for dissatisfaction. It so happened that the voice of the majority was so pronounced in favor of the candidate nominated that there was left no cause for growling over the result, and though there was doubtless disappointment upon the part of the unsuccessful candidates and their friends all had the wisdom to refrain from making an exhibition of their grievances.

We shall not take up the candidates and speak of them individually at this time. In announcing their names we have taken occasion to speak of each one in complimentary terms, and there is consequently no necessity for doing the same thing now. All have been endorsed in the most practical way by the Republicans of the whole county, and the ticket therefore goes forth with the solid backing of the party. That it will receive a cordial and enthusiastic support there can be no question. One noticeable feature of the ticket is the pre-eminence of soldiers nominated. Out of the six candidates four served in the army during the war, and the convention chose a soldier for every office to which one of their number aspirated. It was not within the range of possibilities to do more for the veterans.

The hearty and unanimous endorsement of Senator Rogers, and the resolution instructing the Macon county delegation to the senatorial convention to tender him the nomination, will need a cordial response from the Republicans of the whole county. Mr. Rogers stands well with the people, and with him as our candidate success is almost absolutely assured.

The convention adopted other resolutions which will meet the general approval of the party in the county—one upon the subject of the convict contract labor system, one instructing our members of the house and senate to labor for the passage of legislation looking to the prevention of unjust discrimination in the matter of railway freights, and no other of sympathy for Ireland.

The convention did its work well and the people will ratify it.

Ex Gov. Faxon, of Ohio, was asked recently in New York if there was much alarm at home over the prospective duel between Halstead and McLean, and he replied:

No; the buckeye State for a number of years has been hampered by the tirades of Mr. Murat Halstead and Mr. J. J. McLean abusing each other. We are tired and disgusted with their personal abuse. When we heard that a duel was about to be fought there was a feeling that perhaps its termination would afford some relief. As far as I am concerned, all others, in Ohio, I wish that both of the distinguished editors had fought a duel, and like killdeer crows, dispatched them selves. It would have been a relief, but, alas! no such good luck.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says: "Not much is known here about Thomas E. Benedict, the New Yorker who is to succeed Rountree as Public Printer. The New Yorkers say the appointment is following up the policy outlined when Maguire was made Collector. Benedict is represented to be a person of some political influence, who will prove a useful factor in the fight against Governor Hill when the struggle for the New York delegation to the Presidential convention gets under way."

Most Excellent.

FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION.

The Laffin-Rand Powder Magazine Near Chicago Struck by Lightning.

Dreadful Energy of the Pent-Up Forces, as Displayed for Many Miles Around in all Directions.

One Person Killed Outright, and a Large Number Injured—Great Destruction to Property.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—At fifteen minutes past eleven o'clock yesterday morning, in the midst of a heavy thunderstorm, the powder magazine belonging to the Laffin-Rand Powder Company was struck by lightning. An explosion followed which destroyed property valued at $75,000. One person killed and four fatally injured.

The dead and injured are:

Mrs. Carrie Alberworth, killed instantly.

John Gutz, teamster for the Oriental Powder Company, ribs fractured; right leg broken in two places; internal wounds.

Mrs. Gutz, skull crushed.

Mrs. Eliza Devlin, right leg crushed to a jelly; breast transfixed by a strip of glass.

Besides the one dead, and four who can not survive, the following is a partial list of those who are known to be seriously injured:

Peter Kinn, twenty-eight years old; gardener.

James Shannon, sixteen years old; partner reside on Joseph street and Peterson avenue.

Two brothers, fourteen and sixteen years old respectively; parents reside on Western avenue, near Thirty-sixth street.

Mulden, a small boy, whose parents reside on Thirty-eighth street, near Pearson avenue.

Philip Ritter, cabinet-maker, 722 South Union street, arm crushed by flying stone, and amputated.

John Lorrey, Jr., seventeen years old; 165 Canal street; feet badly crushed.

John Jung, fifty-two years old, gardener; resides south of Archer road.

Mrs. Jung, forty-six years old, wife of the former.

Miss Kennedy, eighteen years old; partner reside on Johnson street, a quarter of a mile from the scene.

The explosion in the two magazines of the Oriental Powder Company, and also those belonging to the Warren Company, the Hazen, the Dupont companies and the Porcile dynamite storehouse, The Laffin & Rand Company's was the only one which exploded. Where it stood up an immense excavation nearly fifty feet in depth.

The combined efforts of a hard-fought battle, and the withering influence of lightning, which had presented a picture of mere object destruction and destruction than did the country for half a mile in all directions from the exploded magazine. The day had opened gloomily.

At eight o'clock rain began falling furiously from immense banks of clouds. Flashes of lightning were seen clashing each other across the entire continent, until the heavens seemed to be on fire.

The thunder was deafening. The work of removing the bricks continued over four hours, at last the man was uncovered. He was standing upright. One arm extended, the other raised above his head. He was wedged in so tightly that he could not move. The most singular part of the mishap was that he was comparatively uninjured, a slight bruise on the head, and a small knot of his hair was the only damage.

The workmen releasing him, all they could and he kept them to work hard. He said his sensations during the four and one-half hours' imprisonment were peculiar beyond imagination, but that he was not unconscious for a moment.

Exhuming Skeletons and Relics of the Past.

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., Aug. 30.—The old "Point Lou" has been for the past two days quite an interesting spot, it was there at the time of the desperate battle of October 10, 1861, in which the rebels fell on that cantonment, were buried, and here for many years stood the walls of old Fort Randolph. A wide excavation is being made on the lot, and entire skeletons are being unearthed. Many are being carried away by relic hunters, and others are being boxed by the proprietor. At a point of the lot stood the old Fort Randolph, which had been the pride of the surrounding. All agree that there was a tremendous shaking of the earth. Articles of furniture not stationary were thrown about, as if they were playthings in a giant's power. Men, women and children were tossed around at the will of the terrible, relentless force released by the explosion.

The scene of the catastrophe is about two miles from the center of the city, near where Archer Avenue sets down into a conventional country highway. On one side were the great fields of ripening corn. On the other a broad stretch of prairie runs for nearly a mile in all directions. On this, or rather were a dozen plain, but strongly-built houses, with walls of yellow brick, roofs of slate and strong iron beams. These houses were the magnificence of the town, the main supply for Chicago and the territory dependent upon it. It was a few people of the humbler class built their poor homes on the prairie close to the warehouses containing the deadly stuff, and lived without fear of any disaster from their proximity.

The force of the explosion traveled

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 29.—Yesterday was a notable one in Louisville, made such by the fact that the men of the Fourth Southern Exposition were thrown to the people for the first time. The event was celebrated in the most appropriate way and everybody enjoyed a holiday. In reference to the event business was generally suspended. The people from the surrounding country commenced to arrive in the morning, and by noon the streets were crowded with spectators of all kinds.

The opening was held in a straight line, and patches of the plastering fell in all parts of the building. The greatest damage was to the ceiling in the main hall, which was completely torn down. Several doors in the building were blown from their hinges, and about two hundred pieces of glass were broken.

At McCormick's works about two hundred pieces of glass on the river side of the building were broken, the building was shaken, and doors were blown from their hinges.

The Board of Trade building, although so far removed from the scene of the explosion, was greatly affected by the tremors of the building.

The shock was distinctly felt in all parts of the city, and many people were greatly frightened. The explosion played sad havoc at the Bridewell. The female prisoners were terribly frightened, but none were injured. Mrs. Armour, one of the matrons, was in the kitchen, and the shock of the explosion was so great that she was unable to attend to duty for several days.
